Reflecting on 2025 and Looking Ahead

As we step into 2026, with the shadow of a potential regional conflict looming on the horizon, we find ourselves reflecting not only on the challenges of 2025, but also on the many success stories that kept us grounded in our mission. It is easy to drift when needs arise on every side and cries for help seem endless. Yet, remaining anchored to our purpose has been both our challenge and our strength.

Some of the difficulties we faced propelled us into new and unexpected ventures, allowing us to reach demographics we had not engaged before. These developments have opened exciting new pathways, and we look ahead with anticipation of what God has in store.

Throughout 2025, a significant focus of our work centered on empowering women and youth—equipping them with purpose, vision, and hope. Through a series of trainings, hands-on volunteer opportunities at camps, and meaningful social outreach, we sought to create practical avenues for engagement and growth. Our youth have been actively involved in mentoring programs and are being equipped to step out confidently and serve with us in our outreach efforts.

The impact of this work is tangible. As we move forward, we do so with expectation, trusting in the new doors the Lord is opening before us—doors that will allow us to reach more people and shape the future of a generation.

Nuna Matar

Post War Update: A Fragile Peace

2025 began with an uneasy peace as a ceasefire brought fragile hope. Families returned home, schools reopened, and life in Beirut slowly regained a sense of normalcy. While political tensions and debates continue, Triumphant Mercy remains steadfast—sowing seeds of hope and sharing the steady, unchanging love of Christ with those living in doubt and despair.

Medication Program: Providing Dignity and Integrity

We are grateful to play a small role in supporting more than 200 individuals with chronic illnesses, providing them consistent access to the medication they need. Before this, many had to take doses irregularly or reduce them to stretch limited resources.

Today, recipients express relief and gratitude for the dignity and security that comes with full treatment:

ASMA

"I couldn't have survived without you"

NAJIB

"Thank you for being there for us"

MONA

"I care for my two brothers—one paralyzed after a stroke, the other struggling with alcohol. Your prayers and support with their medication have been a lifeline; I couldn't afford it on my own."

Youth Program and Sports: Growing in Faith and Leadership

This year, our youth programs experienced a season of transition, welcoming new volunteers, coaches, and fresh energy. As we reimagine new possibilities, the foundation remains unchanged: a safe place where young people can grow, heal, and be themselves.

With a dedicated team in place, our youth sports programs are thriving—growing in both number and depth, fostering strong relationships, deepening faith, and creating space for meaningful mentorship.

This year, some of our youth stepped into leadership roles at summer camp, serving as helpers and mentors.

JOSEPH, 15

“I never expected to be part of the camp team. The kids opened up, and we formed a special bond.”

MAROUN, 17

“It’s the first time I can talk and someone listens without judging me. I feel relieved.”

HOUSSAM, 14

“TM is a place with laughter and fun, but there are lessons to be learned”

RITA, 15

“I honestly go to the center because I feel comfortable I found friends and got taught so much about the bible and so much other stuff”

Women Program: Building Community and Deepening Faith

One of Triumphant Mercy's goals is to cultivate lasting community, and our women's groups reflect this beautifully. Many women, having spent years caring for others, come for a class—and leave with friendships. WhatsApp messages show shared photos, laughter, and moments spent together outside the center, as friendships grow into circles of mutual support.

Each week, these women also gather for Bible study, finding space to slow down, enjoy coffee, and renew hope. They learn from one another, share openly, and deepen their understanding of God's Word.

"I don't usually read the Bible, but when I prepared for Wednesday's devotion, the pages opened like magic. Now I'm excited to read and learn more." — Salwa

Home Visits: Showing Up in Vulnerable Moments

Home visits remain one of our most meaningful ways to connect with people, offering a safe space to share, heal, and find comfort.

ROLAND

Volunteers helped clean his home for the first time in years. During prayer and shared testimonies, he experienced God's comfort and wept, feeling that the Lord had sent people to transform his life.

SAAD

Grieving the loss of his 94-year-old brother, Saad asked for help clearing his belongings. As we cleaned and shared memories, he found comfort, prayer, and the presence of family through our team.

These visits remind us that the greatest gift we can offer is simply to show up—to listen, serve, and walk alongside others in their most vulnerable moments.

Equipping Women and Serving in the Camps

Equipping Women to Return to Syria

Our partnership with a women's clinic in Zahle is restoring dignity and expanding access to health care for Syrian and Lebanese women. Beyond treatment, nursing trainings provide valuable skills, enabling some to return to Syria with knowledge, hope, and the ability to empower their communities.

In the Camps

Rooted in resilience, we continued serving Syrian women through literacy programs, sewing projects, and the SHINE initiative, reaching over 200 women. As families gradually return to Syria, these programs equip women with skills, restore dignity, and bring hope during this season of transition.

Closing the School and Opening New Doors

Closing the School Permanently

When the government began closing education centers for Syrian students, Triumphant Mercy used an old tent school in Marj to complete the year. Afternoon and weekend classes allowed all students to finish, including ninth graders who returned to Syria to take their national exams. The school was then permanently closed.

Our Teachers Who Returned to Syria

With the school closed, our teachers have courageously returned to Syria, carrying the school's values and vision into their communities. Some are rebuilding homes, others are opening after-school programs for 35–40 children, teaching with the principles and compassion formed over years at the school.

The challenges are real—children arrive with different educational experiences, including those who cannot read or write Arabic—but our teachers remain steadfast. What was sown into them is now being sown into Syria, helping to rebuild the next generation despite difficult circumstances.

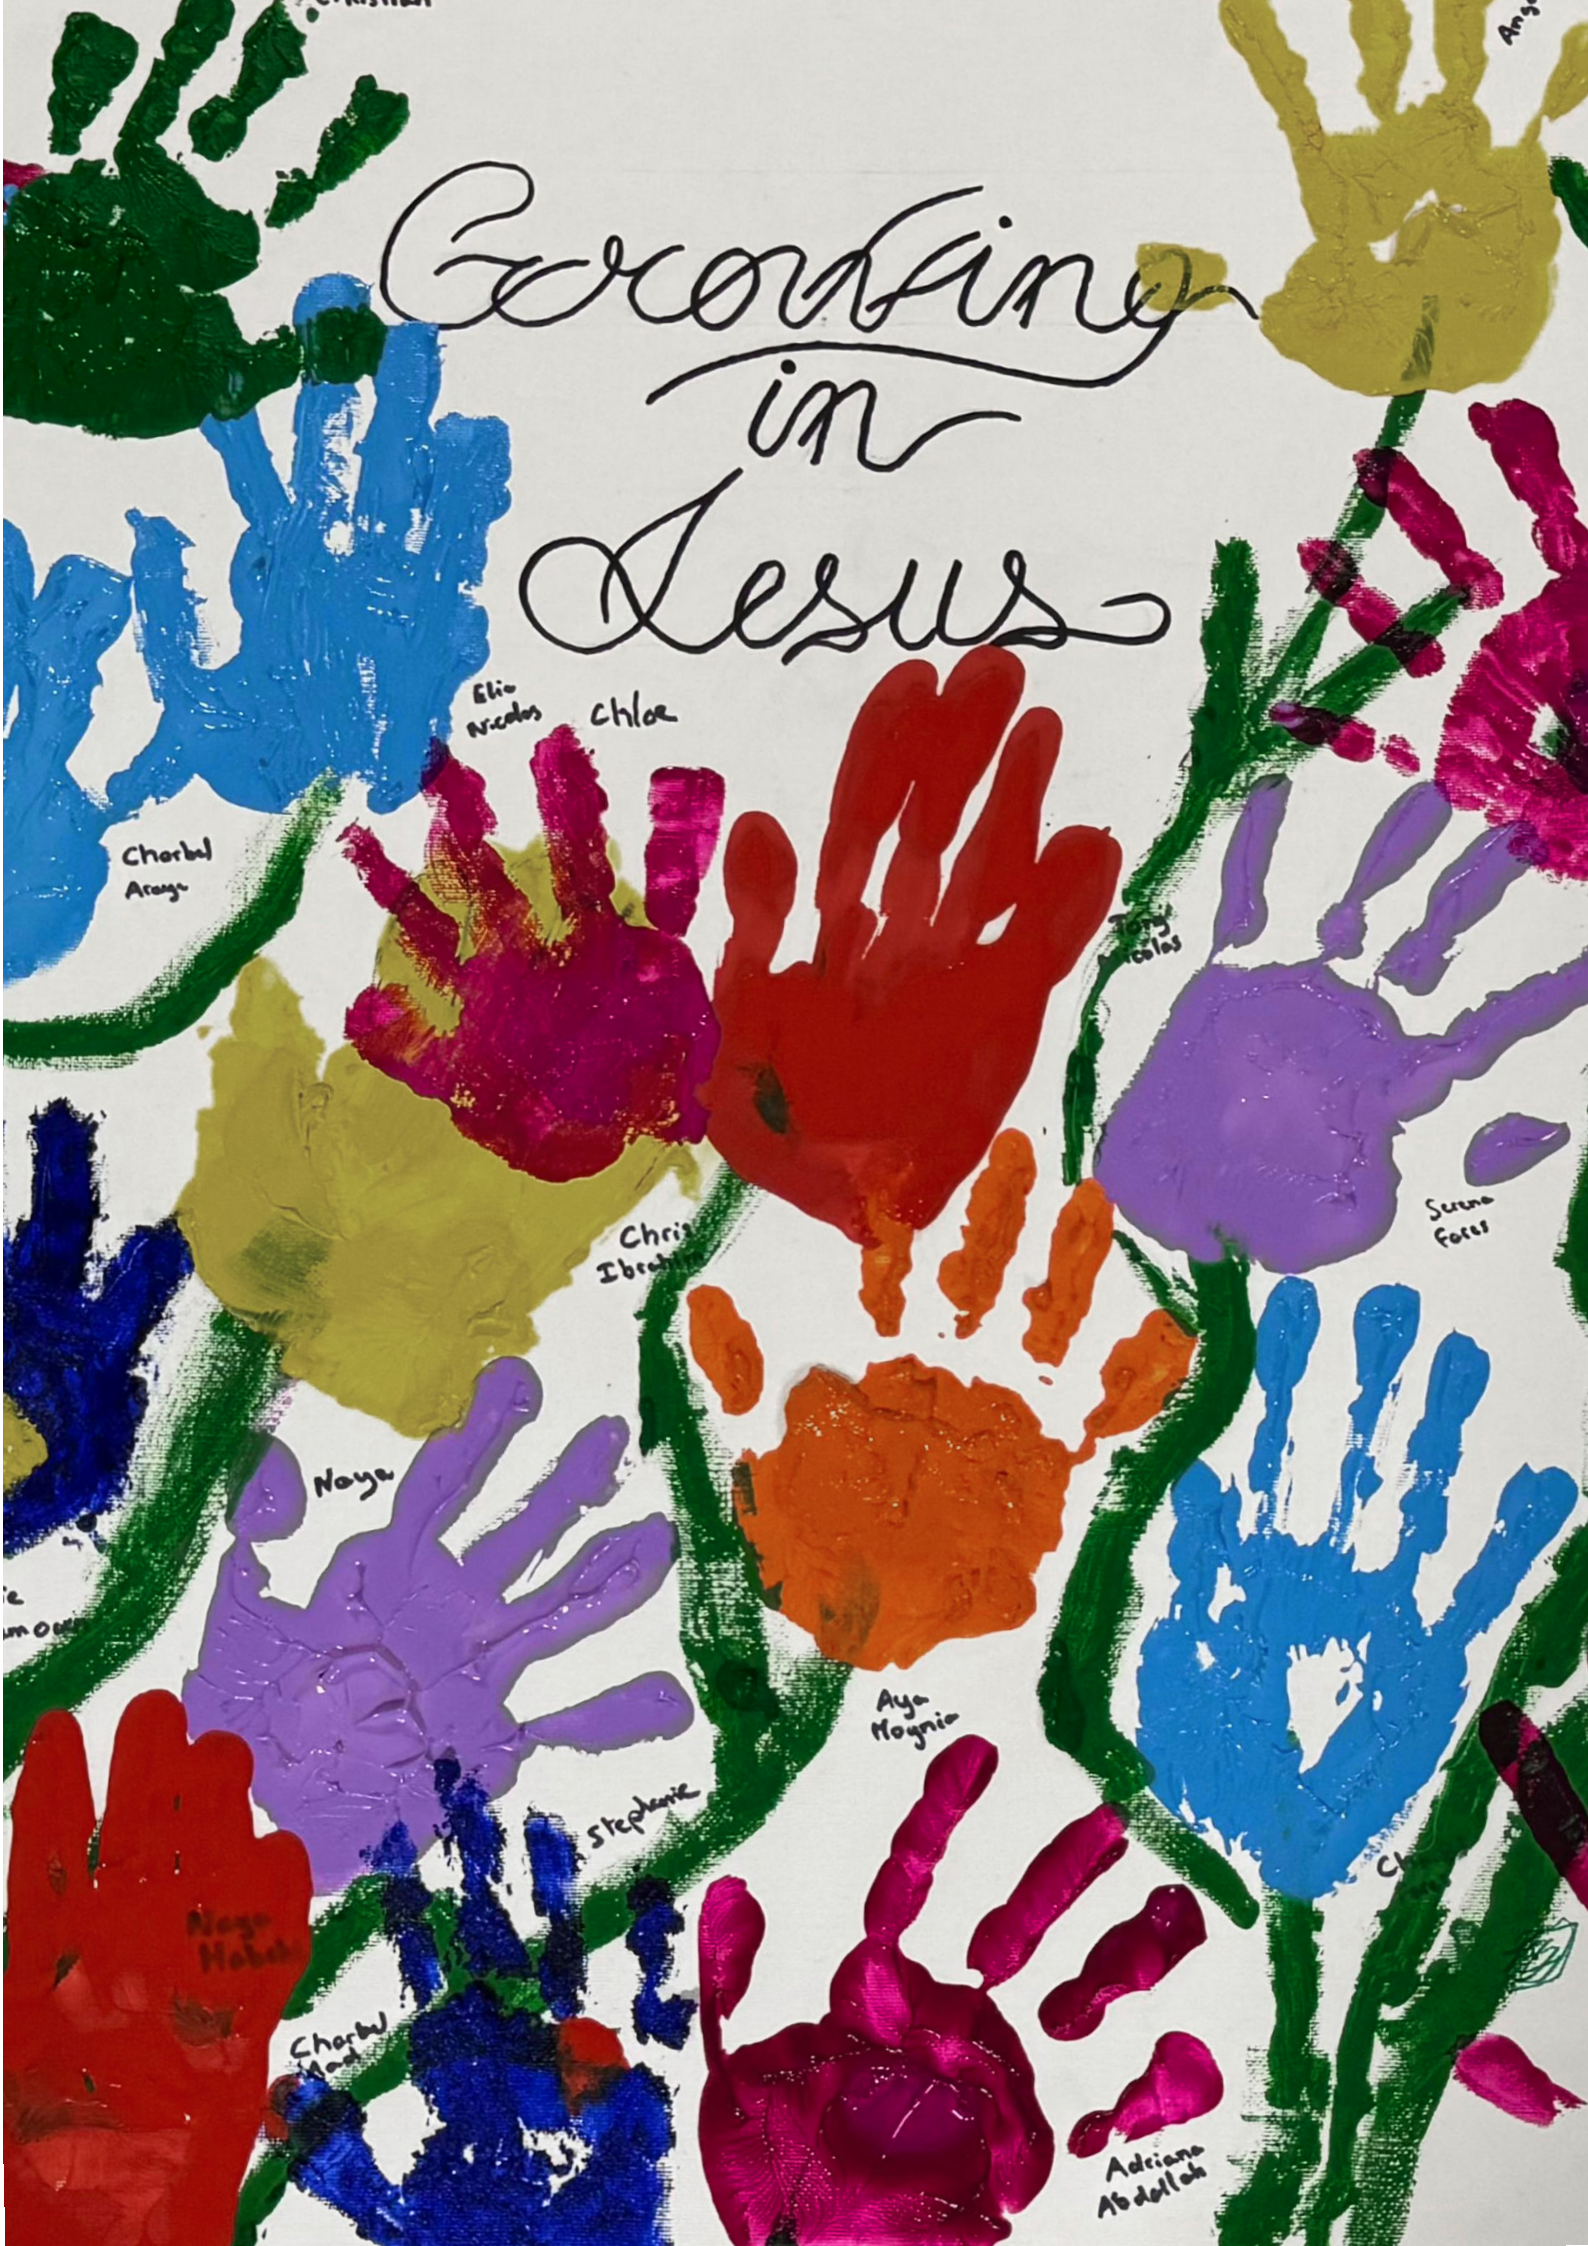

Looking Forward: Shaping the Future of Communities

As we continue investing in people's lives and nurturing relationships, we believe we are shaping the future of entire communities. The work we pour into mentoring will multiply this year, as doors open for our teams and our mentees to serve beyond the walls of our centers. We pray for God's guidance as we step into this new adventure, sharing His love and making His name known all around us.
